STREET RAILWAY WILL FIGHT FOR SKIP-STOP PLAN

Appeal Will Be Made From
Ordinance Passed by City
Commission—Many Citizens
Appear to Oppose Plan.

The skip-stop system of operating the street cars may be discontinued within 10 days. An ordinance passed by the city commission Tuesday afternoon so directs.

But before its passage, which was by the unanimous vote of the five members of the city commission, T. H. Tutwiler and J. P. Miles, gave notice that they would appeal to the state utilities commission at Nashville in an effort to retain the system and that if the utilities commission orders its discontinuance, they will ask an increase in fares to cover the extra cost of operation of cars stopped at every street intersection. They indicated that about 7 cents, or a 1-cent fare, might satisfy them.

But Mr. Tutwiler, in answer to a question from H. J. Livingston, city attorney, admitted that the volume of traffic, that is, the number of passengers who ride the cars every day, is now larger than ever before since street cars ran on the streets of Memphis. It was stated by Mr. Tutwiler during the hearing on the increase of fares at Nashville last year, that the company then handled more than 100,000 passengers daily.

Reports of Mr. Tutwiler and J. P. Miles, receivers of the property, to the United States court filed during this month, show that the company from Jan. 25, the date of the receivership, to Oct. 30, took in from passenger operation, a gross sum of $1,784,101.

Mr. Tutwiler, in a statement to the city commission, estimated that the saving to the company by the skip-stop plan, "ought to be" about $100,000 a year.

A cent increase on 100,000 passengers a day, "ought to" produce an increased revenue from that source of about $100,000 a year. So that if the receivers insist upon extra compensation, if the state utilities commission upholds the right of the city to regulate the service of the company, under its franchise contract, then it is probable that the city will be able to show that the company now is earning enough to cover any increased cost that will result.

Women Want Service.

The public had been asked to attend the city commission meeting at which the ordinance putting an end to the skip-stop plan was to be considered on final reading. The public accepted. The council chamber was packed.

There were more than 100 ladies present, representing the Federation of Parent-Teacher associations, the Nineteenth Century club, the Renaissance circle, the Progress club and numerous others. Official representatives attended from the Trades and Labor council, the Carpenters' District council, the locomotive engineers, and other organized labor unions. Scores of more private citizens also appeared to protest against the discontinuance of the skip-stop plan, which has been in operation nearly two years.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE NOT IN TOBACCO FIGHT

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 12. (Sp.)—Official denial that the Antisaloon league intends to go after tobacco next was made today at Southeastern headquarters of the campaign for law enforcement. A statement by Miss Elizabeth Tyler, says, in part:

"We are not considering and we do not intend to consider any kind of a fight against the cigarette or any other form of tobacco, and we are not allied with any such movement. We are going to have all we can do in the next few years to secure enforcement of national prohibition and in the direction of our aim to make the world better."

"The going into effect of constitutional prohibition on Jan. 17 next," added Dr. C. H. Jones, superintendent of the Georgia department of the Antisaloon league, "does not end the fight on the liquor traffic. On the contrary, we are entering upon our hardest fight—to see to it that the laws are enforced."

"Everything indicates that the liquor interests have no purpose of abandoning their fight to keep their business alive by any and every means. Enforcement officials must be assisted and upheld."

"However, it is no part of the league's purpose to convert the organization into a detective agency. We believe that men situated or appointed to office are the ones properly charged with enforcement and that loyal citizens should back them up in enforcement, relieving them to private life if they fail to do their duty."

"Popular education as to what the law means, campaign to elect dry officials, support of the enforcement program—all these take time, money and resources, and these it is our purpose to supply."

URGE FEDERAL LAW TO PROHIBIT STRIKE CALLS

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 12.—A federal law to prohibit the calling of strikes until after every reason for them had failed, was urged in a resolution presented today at the convention of the American Mining congress here.

YOUR DAUGHTER!

How Will She Grow Up?

How attractive will she be as a young lady?—What kind of a wife and mother will she make?

FIRST plant the love of music in her heart. You cannot begin too soon. When Oliver Wendell Holmes was asked when the education of the child should begin, he said: "100 years before the child is born."

Flood your daughter's life with music. You want her to have rhythm in her walk, and grace in every gesture. You want to hear the music in her laughter and see the twinkle in her eye. And you want to be sure that there is melody in her soul.

Make her familiar with the symphonies of the great composers, and she will breathe the spirit of harmony. Teach her to be friends with the waltzes of Strauss and the minuets of Paderewski, and let her keep in touch with the best of popular music.

Buy a Piano, a Pianola player-piano or a Victrola. Let your child's musical education begin at once. Do not waste further time. Do not lose pleasure you might enjoy now.
